

For signals and templates with different dimensions, models aimed at pattern matching are usually used.